

Lectures on Magnetohydrodynamics

When conducting fluids flow through magnetic fields, a remarkable coupling emerges: the field shapes the flow,
and the flow reshapes the field.

From the solar corona to fusion reactors,
from accretion disks to planetary dynamos, magnetohydrodynamics governs some of nature's most spectacular phenomena.

Lectures on Magnetohydrodynamics

Claude Opus 4.5

Edited by Adam S. Jermyn